THE sail news comes by telegraph, from Philadelphia, that Edwin Adams lies completely prostrated to-night. His death is looked for hourly. To an intimate friend he said, "Give my love to friends."

THE Arkanias State fair, which has en joyed a most successful week at Little Rock, both on account of the splendid display and most propilious weather, closed yesterday the attendance being as good as on any pre-

THE supreme court at Jefferson City, Missouri, has granted an appeal in the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad case. This decision, it is sa'd, saspends the appointment of a receiver, and restores the road to its original status. The case will come up again at the secret session in Washington yesterday. Publicity is not given to its deliberations, but it is known that the Pacifi; railroad sinking fund question, as presented by Thurman's bill, was under consideration. Jay Gould, in behalf of the Union Pacific railroad company, submitted statements supporting the recommendations of the government director.

The Bohemian Girl. This charming opera has been under ac-tive rehearsal for some time by a number of talented amateurs and professional musicians. Its production at the Memphis Thea-ter the fifth and sixth of November has al-ready aroused attention and elicits general ready aroused attention and elicits general interest. All the ladies and gentlemen in the cast have been zealous in their efforts to grasp and comprehend the piece so as to do their respective roles credit. From their known talent and amount of study given the piece, we teel assured that the Bohemian Girl will be rendered in a manner artistic and fascinating. The plot of the opera is exceedingly pleasing, which opens at "Count Arnheim's" chateau, Austria, to which place "Thaddeus." a Polish exile, needy and in search of concealment, makes his way while the peasantry and retainers, with their herds, are preparing for the chase. "Devilshoof," a leader of a band of Gypsies, meets "Thaddeus," and learning that he is pursued by Austrian troops, gives him a disguise, and after hiding him, puts the pursuers on the wrong track. Soon thereafter cries of distress being heard, and "Florestein" appears, surrounded by huntsmen, the count's child and her attendant having been attacked by an infuriated stag in the forest, "Thaddeus," seizing a rifle, hurried to the forest and shot the stag dead. He then takes the child in his arms, and, upon returning, meets the "Count," who, overjoyed at the rescue of his darling, overwhelms "Thaddeus" with arrateful overwhelms "Thaddeus" with arrateful who, overjoyed at the rescue of his darling, overwhelms "Thaddeus" with grateful thanks, and invites him to join the festivities about to take place. After first refusing, "Thaddeus" accepts the invitation, and when seated at the table the "Count" offers as a treat "Health and long life to the express." seated at the table the "Count" offers as a toast, "Health and long life to the emperor." All except "Thaddeus" drink to the toast, and the "Count" orders him to join in. He refuses to comply, and dashes the wine to the ground, which, of course, produces a burst of indignation and surprise. The guests become so indignant that they threaten to kill "Thaddeus," but "Devilshoof" appears about this time, and of course takes sides with him. By order of the "Count" the at-about this time, and of course takes sides with him. By order of the "Count" the attendants seize and convey "Devilshoof" to the castle, but "Thaddeus" is allowed to depart, and the festivities are resumed. During the fete "Devilshoof" escapes, taking with him the "Count's" infant daughter, "Arline." His flight is soon discovered, excitement prevails, and pursuit is instituted, pcasants, huntsmen, and attendants join in the search. "Devilshoof" is soon espied, but he is crossing a dangerous precipice, holding the child in his arms, and manages to escape. The first act here ends, giving a picture of the unhappy father in his anguish and despair. Fifteen years elapse, when we behold in the suburbs of the city of Presburg a camp of gipsies, with their queen, in whose tent dwells the "Count's" daughter, "Arline," now grown

"Devilshoff" and companions, who steal his jewelry, the wley gipsy taking care to secure for himself a medalion. "Thaddeus," who had, from the time of the flight, become a member of the gipsy band, falls in love with "Arline," and they become engaged, although he conceals the secret of his birth-and former life. While the gipsies are at a grand fair in the plaza of the city, "Florestein" appears and is fascinated by the beauty of "Arline." He discovers his medalion on her neck, and, as she refuses to surrender it, he charges her with theft, which causes great

act. "Arline" is restored to her rank and father's home, but still loves "Thaddeus," who has to face danger and meet her in secret. "Thaddeus" finally bids her farewell, she promising fidelity, and declares that she will love no one else. Here we find that the will love no one else. Here we find that the "Gipsy Queen," who also loves "Thaddeus," has been plotting to take him from "Arline." By her device the medallion was discovered in possession of "Arline." Even now she is conspiring to separate the lovers, but her plots fail. "Thaddeus" finally relates his history to "Count Arnheim," who, in gratitude to the savior of his child, bestows her upon him. Desire for vengeance now fills the heart of the "Gipsy Queen." She induces one heart of the "Gipsy Queen." She induces one of her tribe to shoot at "Thaddeus" while he is embracing "Arline." This attempt at assassi-nation fails, for "Devilshoof" by a timely movement causes the murderous bullet to miss "Thaddeus," and it pierces the heart of the "Gipsy Queen." On alternate evenings Misses Jennie Magevney and Hattie Collins take the role of "Arline," and Misses Kate Harmon and Jennie Jones that of the "Gipsy Queen." The rest of the cast is as follows: "Count Arnheim," governor of Presburg, John Legler; "Thaddeus," George L. Cast-ner; "Buda," Miss Jennie Hunter; "Flor-estein," W. W. Warren: "Devilshoof," N.

THE MEMPHIS AND NORFOLK RAILWAY CONSOLIDATION.

The movement now going on for the consoldidation of all the lines of railroad hing between Memphis and Norfolk may possibly be made to embrace the road running from Lynchburg to Washington, in which event the Charleston road will have restored to it all the advantages of the initial of a through route from the southwest to the east, the shortest and one of the safest and best in the consolidation, which, if effected, will positively determine our city as the point where the Texas and Pacific will make its closest eastern connections. . MR. BLACKBURN, the representative of Mr. Clay's old district in Ken-tucky, has been charged with saying, in a recent speech made here, and which has been the subject of much unfavorable comment, that he hoped to d Almighty would not allow Senator Morton to return to the senate. I am authorized to deny that he ever used such words, or that he even mentioned Mr. Morton's name.

APPLICANTS FOR OFFICE. The following gentlemen are among the applicants for office, under the Huyes administration, from the tenth district, and whose papers are on file: Dr. Paul Otey, for consul at Bordeaux; G. W. L. Crook, for consul at Mexico; Bernard Powling, of Sonierville, for consul at Antwerp; E. S. Hammond, W. W. Murray, and J. J. Dupuy, of Bolivar, for United States district-attorney; C. S. The Letter which he Wrote while in the Rebel Army-Desire to Revisit New York and Settle his Debts.

What he Thought, and what he Did fo the Confederacy-His Conduct now Objected to by Republicans.

Below we give the full text of the letter which Mike J. Waldron is said, while in the Confederate army, to have written to a friend in Dunkirk, New York, where he formerly lived. This letter, it is said, having been published in circular form, is one of the causes of opposition to the confirmation of Mr. Waldron as United States marshal for West Tennessee, to which position he was appointed by Mr. Hayes. The letter is as appointed by Mr. Hayes. The letter is as follows:

BCHMOND, VA., July 10, 1862.

FRIEND SHEWARD—I believe I wrote you a letter from Decatur, Ainbama, a few days before the battle of Shiloh, or Plitsburg, as the Yankees call it Jim. I was in that night as special aid to General A. S. Johnston. The press, North and South Men. Steen you a description of the man on the field. After the death of our famented commander-in-chief I was transferred to General Beauregard, and have continued in his department since. I am here at Richmond since May, acting as chief of telegraphic corps. I have made one visit to Memphis since that time, and saw Anna —, of Fredonia. She gave me a history of friends and things in Dunkirk. I hear this morning that I am to be transferred to Major General Buckner's division, and not knowing where I am to go, and having a friend here who is going on a visit to the United States, I thought I would write to you, so that you might know of my whereabouts. I am really glad, for your sake, that you have been elected county judge; in times gone by I would be doubly glad on account of party, but alast what a change! The once-loved and proud Democratic party of the north is tike Aladdin's lamp to King Abe—he has but to rub it, when his minlons, orators and soldlers, native and adopted flock to the standard of Abe, Greeley & Co, with hemp, and fire, and steel, unconquerable, as they imagine. In the immensity of their numbers, blind and mad in their desire for pitunder and boo'y, their crimes and atroctites far more savage and cruel, filthy and unchristian than anything recorded in history since the dawn of civilization. erenaded in New York—His Speech is Response Gives Evidence of his Appreciation of Our Superiority Over the Britishers.

New York, October 27.—Ex-Governor Tilden was serenaded to night. In his speech he said: "If our British cousins find it difficult to get a supply of food, we have a boundless supply and a continent in which are vast areas of fertile soil, adapted to the use of agricultural machinery, and connected with the centers of trade by great rivers, by vast internal seas, and by seventy-five thousand miles of r. Ilroad. Why cannot British workmen have cheap food, our farmers good trade and our carriers facilitate this commerce? Commercial exchanges, it must be remembered, involve mutuality. We must reform and moderate our barbarous revenue system, and no longer legislate against works of humanity, the benefactions of God." Tilden Indorsed the Democratic State ticket, and said; "This election has a relation to national politics, in regard to which you expect that I should make some observations. You are sware of the result of the contest in 187d." [A voice-You were robbed.] Tilden, excitedly: "I did not get robbed; the people got, robbed; it was the robbery of the dearest rights of American citizens—the right of free government; the right of the people to govern themselves, and change their rulers at will. If the American people lie down and consent to sacrifice the integrity of their control over their own government, they will commit a wrong, not only against themselves, but the people of every other land. One thing I promise, one thing I swear, before the assembled people of America—I swear that the government of America will be restored to the resonle according to the ideal of its founders."
